Business Club Holds Its First Ladies' Night

High School Auditorium Is Beautifully Decorated for Occasion

One hundred and ten members of the Antioch Business club their wives and guest enjoyed the first ladies' night of the Club Monday evening at a dinner given at the Antioch Township high school auditorium. The dinner was served by the home economics class of the high school, under the supervision of their instructor, Miss Deedie Tiffany. The dining hall was beautifully decorated with autumn foliage with a brown effect of brown and yellow streams, the color scheme being carried even to the beautifully decorated tables with their yellow and brown settings.

Miss Bauck and Miss Hiers, two new acquisitions to the high school faculty this year, are credited with the decorations, arrangements of flowers and tables, and the vote of appreciation called for by Mr. Abt was enthusiastically given.

It was announced that a quartet from Palatine would be on hand to entertain us, but due to unforeseen business engagements they were unable to appear, but Mr. Aspinwall, one of the members of the quartet, rather than disappoint us wholly, came alone. His singing was greatly appreciated and in both numbers that he so kindly rendered he was compelled to give an encore. Mrs. Archie Mapleshorpe very ably accompanied him on the piano.

The Rev. Stanton with his usual peppishness kept the diners busy singing. Miss Bauck leading on the piano.

The speakers for the evening were Judge Martin C. Decker of Waukegan; Attorney A. J. Beaubien, of Waukegan and Rep. C. H. Francis of Woodstock.

Mr. Decker in his talk favored us with some more of his stories. Mr. Beaubien gave a short talk on his European trip the past summer and it was greatly appreciated for its interest and educational value. Representative Francis gave us a very precise and yet clear understanding of the routine of bills through the General Assembly.

Compliments for the manner in which the dinner was served were amply sufficient in the amazement expressed by the speaker of the evening when told that it was being served by the high school pupils. A vote of thanks was also given to Miss Tiffany and her students, and to Mr. Aspinwall and Mrs. Mapleshorpe.

BUSINESS MEN INVITED TO ATTEND M. E. CHURCH

The Rev. E. Lester Stanton of the M. E. Church, last Monday evening, invited the member of the Antioch Business Club and members of their families to attend a special service to be given next Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m. There will be special music by a quartet and cornet solo by Mr. Pollock. The officers of the club hope to see a large representation of the club at the service.

Antioch Grid Squad Go to Woodstock Saturday

Antioch high school football team will travel to Woodstock on Saturday to give battle to the high school gridgers representing that school.

Last Friday afternoon the Antioch squad lost a poorly played game at the local field to Libertyville by a 14-0 score. Not only did Antioch perform far below par, for their opponents seemed to be "off color" and should have run up a larger score.

Antioch started well and played excellent for the first few minutes and it looked as if the large assemblage of rooters were in for a good battle, but the fast pace soon disappeared and everything was Libertyville after that. Two touchdowns being made in the first half.

All during the second half the teams were at a standstill, the ball being in midcenter with each team being unable to make any advantageous gains, resorting mostly to punting, with Libertyville holding a slight advantage.

The next home game will be played on October 31, with Warren high school as opponents.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Thursday, October 13, 1904

Mrs. Libbie King is on the sick list. Mrs. Emma Bartlett and Mrs. W. F. Ziegler were in Chicago on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hermy Bock are now pleasantly located in their new home. Charles Thorn has improved the appearance of his store by painting the front.

Mrs. Del Sabin was in Chicago on business Monday.

G. Dewitt Stanton had the misfortune to lose his valuable Percheron breeding horse one night last week. The horse being found dead in the stall.

Claude Brogan and Evan Kaye left Monday for St. Louis where they will spend the week at the World's fair.

The fact that Mr. J. W. Van Duzer is the owner of a very productive piece of farm land and that he is a model farmer is proven by the fact that on Monday morning he left at the office door a cabbage which measured forty-five inches in circumference and weighs sixteen pounds.

Mr. L. H. Rogers had the misfortune to lose his barn with contents of hay, grain and machinery by fire caused by lightning, during the storm Tuesday night.

Annual Gathering Held at Campbell Cottage

Pouring rain provided a most inauspicious setting for the opening of the annual—and perennial—house party at the Campbell cottages on Lake Catherine. But the record of many years of joyous gatherings was not to be broken and as always the glad spirit of the guests transcended the melancholy of the weather. Clothes were damp but ardor was not and next morning came the reward of fortitude in the form of one of the most beautiful days of the year.

Seven automobiles brought the guests from the city late Saturday afternoon and a delayed delegation came in the eighth car Sunday morning. Among those who drove up were Mr. and Mrs. John E. G. Puerkel, daughter and son-in-law of our fellow townsman, D. D. Campbell, and they together with Miss Anna Campbell made the city people welcome to the cottages and to Antioch.

The appetizing odors of supper soon dispelled all thought of the inclement weather and its no less appetizing taste completed everyone's happiness. Then followed a long evening of cards and various pranks interspersed with reminiscences exchanged by long-time friends. At a late hour the guests sought their beds for such rest as the exuberance of their fellow guests permitted. At least one young couple were given cause to remember this night by an event of supreme importance in their marital life.

After an hour or two of sleep—quite sufficient in nearly everyone's estimation—they arose to find that the day had dawned clear and bright. After the matutinal bacon and eggs had been consumed on the fly, the annual horseshoe tournament was begun with a zest that spoke well for the popularity of the grand old game of barnyard golf. Baseball also came in for attention and there were more pranks. In due time the cars were set in motion for Antioch and a delicious dinner was had, after which the party returned to the cottages for the last talks before parting in many cases for another year. At dusk the return to the city began with everyone determined to miss no future reunions.

Those present in addition to the Puerkels and the Campbells were: Messrs. and Mesdames C. L. Leitchy, E. P. Lee, W. G. Minich, A. A. Bowman, G. H. Miller, W. H. Farnum, A. H. Drake, George Simons, Gus Tresselt, George Reimer and Edwin Cross, Mr. Richard Tresselt, Mr. G. W. Harmer and Mrs. Hattie Kock.

FIRE DEPT. ELECT OFFICERS FOR THE YEAR

At a regular meeting of the Fire Department Tuesday evening, election of officers were held. For president, Frank Huber, secretary, John Horan, and treasurer, Geo. Garland. A committee of three was appointed to audit the books for the past year. The generous contributions from fire calls in the country recently were greatly appreciated by the department.

Many Accidents to County Cops During Summer

The job of motorcycle policeman is so dangerous in Lake county it is regarded as a wonder anybody can be found to take the positions. A record of the season's activities is truly alarming, but the fortunate thing about it is that there were no fatalities this year. During the past few years several motorcycles were killed. More than a dozen motorcycle officers were injured this season, a check-up shows, among the injured being:

Henry Peterson, Deerfield, broken ankle.

Ambrose Beaudin, Highland Park, broken leg. Worked out of sheriff's office.

Thomas (Red) Burnette, Antioch, worked out of sheriff's office, three broken ribs.

Ralph (Pat) Smith, North Chicago, injured twice. Broken leg and arm, still in hospital.

Walter Repkow, Waukegan, state motor police, broken ankle, still on crutches.

David Peters, North Chicago, badly sprained leg. On duty again.

William Blaylock, Waukegan motor police, twice injured, two badly sprained wrists.

Percy McLaughlin, Deerfield, broken leg, this week; in hospital.

Among those killed in Lake county during the past few years were Wm. Hana, North Chicago, who was burned to death at Lake Villa, and Wm. Petersen, of Winthrop Harbor, shot to death while trying to capture Ignatz Potz, now serving life sentence for murder.

Practically all of the above accidents occurred while the officers were in pursuit of law violators. Speed demons, bright light specialists, and drunken drivers, not only have they heavy toll of persons in private life, but the list shows that the officers who are trying to protect them run great risks every day in performance of duty.

The marriage took place at the old Hucker farm, where Miss Hucker had spent her girlhood. Miss Hucker's parents and grandparents were married in the month of October. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rentner attended the couple at the marriage services and only the immediate relatives were present.

Harlo Cribb Is Injured When Tractor Turns Over

Harlo Cribb, who was seriously injured last Wednesday afternoon and taken to the hospital, is getting along very nicely, and according to the doctors, the young man will fully recover.

While excavating the basement for the new Peacock home at Lake Villa, Harlo was driving a tractor and in climbing an embankment, the tractor tipped over backward and he became entangled in the iron draw chain and was unable to make a leap for safety. The tractor plowed Cribb to the earth and broke several ribs and dislocated his hip. He was taken to his home Wednesday afternoon for examination, and when found how serious his condition really was he was removed to the hospital at Waukegan on Thursday morning. It is expected he will be confined to the hospital for several weeks.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO HEAR DR. EVA WILSON

Those who attended the Farmer's Institute held at the Antioch High School last spring and were privileged to hear Dr. Eva Wilson will be delighted to know she is returning to Antioch next Monday, October 20. Through the great kindness of one of its members the Woman's club of Antioch is to have Dr. Wilson as the speaker for its program on that date. The committee has arranged to hold the meeting in the Antioch theatre rather than in the Village hall as is customary. This enables each member to invite her neighbors to hear Dr. Wilson who has a vital message for every thinking woman.

Since retiring from the medical profession Dr. Wilson has lived on a farm and it is her thorough knowledge of country life and conditions that makes her an especially appealing speaker in rural communities.

The time of the meeting has been conveniently placed at 2:30, and every woman in Antioch and vicinity is not only cordially invited but heartily urged to be present. Dr. Wilson is much sought in club circles, and the Antioch club feels particularly proud to have her as a speaker on its year's program.

AGRICULTURAL CLUB TO SHOW CLOD HOPPER

Students of the Agricultural club are to put on a benefit movie Friday, October 24th. The film "Clodhopper" featuring Charles Ray is to be shown at the Antioch theatre.

The harvesting of the Frost Resistant Corn at the School Farm is under way. Several bushels have already been ordered by farmers.

Barred Rock hen No. 6 laid 12 eggs since Oct. 1st—one egg each day. Trapping of the fowls is to continue throughout the year.

A feeding experiment with hogs started Sept. 20 is showing up wonderfully. Ground barley and skim milk is proving to be the best ration for growing and fattening hogs. The public is invited to view these experiments at the high school.

Underwear Company Look Here for Factory Site

Reports appearing in the Grayslake Times to the effect that Antioch was bidding for the factory of the Marathon Underwear company do not bear up under scrutiny.

As far as Antioch is concerned representatives of the Marathon Company came to Antioch about three weeks ago and interviewed the village president, George Bartlett. The gentlemen stated that they were looking for a site for their factory. A search of the town for a suitable location revealed only one available temporary quarters, that was the Powles building on Lake street, but Mr. Powles was not in favor of renting these stores for manufacturing purposes. Other quarters were looked over but none were found suitable. Antioch has not heard from the company since.

A year's rent free was one of the requirements proposed by the company and later the erection of a suitable building at a nominal rent.

Antioch has not made any attempt to prepare for the attraction of manufacturers to this town, and the suggestion that the Business Club appoint a standing committee to take this matter in hand is not amiss.

Old Antioch Landmark Is Being Razed

King Building to Make Way for Modern Structure to Be Completed in Jan.

Antioch's oldest building landmark will be a thing of history with the passing of the King Drug store building on Main street, which is being wrecked this week to make room for a modern brick building.

According to history furnished by Mrs. D. A. Williams, the old wooden structure was built prior to 1843, and was occupied by Munson Bros.' store. In 1843 the first Antioch grade school occupied the rooms on the second floor.

William Ring and son purchased the building from the Munson's and a few years later the firm was known as the Collier and Ring Co. In 1871 Levi Simons and D. A. Williams took over the business. Simons later sold to L. P. Barnes and Barnes and Williams conducted the business. E. B. Williams later took possession, from whom Frank King, the present owner made his purchase.

With the passing of the grade school from the building the second floor was converted into a hall, the only one in Antioch, and was used by the Masonic lodge, the Good Templar lodge and for church services of the Baptist church.

The addition occupied by the Hachmeister meat market was built on in later years by "Uncle Jim" Davis, who a few of the older generation still remember.

Barney Naber purchased the building from Mr. King and is supervising the wrecking. Work was started early Tuesday morning on the upper portion of the building, and it was found that the lath used was of hand-splintered boards. The boards are about twelve feet long and eight inches wide, being about one-half inch in thickness.

The carpenters evidently used an axe to make long splinters in the boards which were wide enough to hold plaster. The larger foundation posts were of solid oak and riveted together with wooden pegs. Most of the heavy timber is still in very good condition and could stand many years more of hard wear.

The new building will get under operation as soon as the ground is cleared and it is hoped to have it ready for occupancy in January. It will be occupied by the King Drug store and the Hachmeister market.

During the completion of the new structure the King's Drug store will carry on their business across the street in the Felter block, and the Hachmeister meat market will take up temporary quarters in the former Green Front fruit store on Main street, next to Reeves Drug Store.

CHAPTER V

Rifle Shots From the Cliffs

Thank heaven it was just noon! Judith sprang to her feet, her eyes bright and hard, and ran down to the men's quarters. Coming up from the corral were Carson and Bud Lee.

"Miller with the pay roll money has been held up and robbed at Squaw creek," she told them swiftly. "Get some men together, Carson, and try to head the robber off."

"That's on the level, Miss Judith?" demanded Carson slowly.

"Of course it's on the level," she cried impatiently. "Oh, I know what you're thinking. I'm going to phone immediately to the bank at Rocky Bend and have another man sent out with more money. You can count upon getting your pay at six o'clock!"

"I told you, didn't I," muttered Carson, "that I wasn't worrying none personal? But if I was you'd sure have the money on tap!"

With that he left her, going hastily to round up what men he could find and get them into their saddles. Bud Lee, his eyes still on her, stood where he was.

"Well," demanded the girl, "aren't you going, too?" Suddenly angered by his leisurely air, she added cuttingly: "Not afraid, are you?"

"I was thinking," Lee answered coolly, "that the stick-up gent will most probably figure on a play like that. If he was real wise he'd mosey along toward Rocky Bend and pop off your second man. Two thousand bucks a day would make a real nice little draw."

Judith paused, frowning. There was truth in that. If Trevors really were behind this, he would have planned ahead.

"If you'll do my way," continued Lee thoughtfully, "I'll have just enough time to roll a smoke and saddle little old Climax. He's in the stable now. You're not afraid of a smart-headed-crossing you? Even if a smart-headed man had planned the hold-up he wouldn't figure on a play like this. He'd think we'd have a Rocky Bender bring it out or else wait until tomorrow."

"It won't do," she decided quickly. "I want that money here at six o'clock."

"Eighty miles," mused the horse foreman. "Six hours. That's riding right along, but do it my way and I'll gamble you my own string of horses—and they're worth considerable more than a thousand—that I'll be back, heeled, at six."

Judith, quick at decisions, looked him hard in the eye, heard his plan, and three minutes later Bud Lee, a revolver in his shirt, rode away from the ranch-house, headed toward Rocky Bend. Judith already had called up Tripp, and the veterinarian himself, leading the fastest saddle-horse he could get his hands on at brief notice, was also riding toward Rocky Bend, from the Lower End, five miles in advance of Lee at the start. He went at a gentle trot, consulting his watch now and then.

So Bud Lee, riding as once those hard, dare-devil riders rode who carried across the land the mail-bag of the Pony express, overtook Doc Tripp and changed to a fresh horse at the end of the first fifteen miles. The clock at the bank at Rocky Bend marked forty-three minutes after two as Lee, leaving a sweating horse at the door on Main street, presented his check at the paying teller's window. The money, in a small canvas bag, was ready.

"Hello, Bud," and "Hello, Dan!" was the beginning and end of the conversation which ensued. Lee did not stop to count the money. He drew his belt up a hole as he went back to the door, found a fresh horse there fighting his bit and all but lifting the stable-boy off his feet, mounted and sped back along Main street.

Judith was to send another fresh horse for him so that he could not fall to be back at the ranch-house by six o'clock. As Bud Lee, riding hard but never without thought for the horse which carried him, began the return trip, he drew the heavy-caliber revolver from his shirt and thrust it into his belt.

The road wound in and out among the pines, always climbing. Lee raced on, his eyes bright and keen, watchful and suspicious of every still shadow or stirring branch. From the top of the mountain, before he again followed a winding road back to the river's side, he saw a horseman riding a distant ridge; the sun glinting upon the rider's rifle.

"Old Carson himself," thought Lee. "Looking for the hold-up man. Shucks! They'll never find him this trip."

Another mile, and Bud Lee was riding through a clearing, with the tall cliffs of Squaw Creek canyon looming high on his left, when suddenly and absolutely without warning, his horse screamed, gathered itself for a wild plunge, staggered, stood a moment trembling terribly, then with a low moan collapsed under him.

Lee swung out and to one side, landing clear as the big brute fell. He did not understand. He had ridden the animal hard but certainly not hard enough for this. And then he saw and his eyes blazed with anger. He had heard no shot, nothing beyond the metallic pounding of the shod hoofs on flinty road, but there from an ugly hole in the neck the saddle-horse was pouring out its blood.

"Smokeless powder and a Maxim silencer!" muttered Lee, his eyes taking note of the ten thousand possible hiding-places on the cliffs.

In his ears there was a little whine as a second bullet sang its way by his head. Again he sought to locate the marksman, again saw nothing but crag and precipice and brushy clump. He took time for that thing which came so hard to him, sent a bullet from his own revolver into his horse's brain, and then slipped out of the clearing into the shelter of the pines.

"Two miles left to the border line," he estimated it. "Afoot."

Stiff from the saddle, he moved on slowly for a little. But as his muscles responded and warmed to the effort, he broke into a trotting run.

For the second time that day he heard the whine of a bullet. He thought that the shot came from the cliffs just at the head of Squaw Creek canyon. But he could not be sure. He'd make the climb tomorrow and see about it. Now he'd keep right on moving. Little used to traveling save on a horse's back he was shot through with odd pains when at last he came to the border-line fence and the waiting horse. Tommy Burditt held it for him while Lee mounted.

"Somebody up on the cliffs, head of the canyon," panted Lee at Tommy's amazed expression when Lee came running into sight. "Killed my horse. Go after him, Tommy. Tell the other boys." And on he went, pounding out the last fifteen miles, the canvas bag beating against his side.

Judith, in the courtyard, watched him ride in. She looked swiftly at him from the watch on her wrist. Her eyes brightened. It lacked seven minutes to six. As Bud dropped the canvas bag into her hands she flashed at him the most wonderful, radiant smile that the long horseman had ever seen. She gripped his lean, brown hand in hers.

"Bud, you're a brick!" she cried. Mrs. Langworthy had just come out with Hampton, Trevors and the major. Judith turned from Lee to Trevors, but managed to keep half an eye on Mrs. Langworthy.

"You see, it's pay day with us, Mr. Trevors," she said quietly. "And when pay day comes we pay our men at six o'clock in spite of h—l and high water!"

Bud Lee, leading his horse away, turned for a word. "A man killed a horse for me today," he said very gently, and his eyes rested steadily upon Trevors. "If I ever get him, or the man who put him up to it, I'm going to get him right."

On the Blue Lake ranch there was more than one man ready to scoff at the idea of a robbery like this one, frank enough to voice the suspicion: "It's just a stall for time!" So much had last week's rumor done for them, preparing them to expect something that would set aside the customary monthly pay day. But when they had seen Charlie Miller's bruised head and heard his story; when they had sat on their horses and looked down at the animal which had been shot under Bud Lee, they were silent. And, besides, when long after dark they came in behind Carson from a fruitless quest, their pay was ready for them as formerly, in gold and silver.

Trevors, with little to say to any one, took his departure in the forenoon, extracting from Hampton the promise to ride over and see the lumber camp some day soon.

Judith, held at the office by a lot of first-of-the-month details, did not get away until close to eleven o'clock that morning. Then she rode swiftly down the river, a purpose of her own in mind.

Just below the Lower End settlement she came upon Doc Tripp. He was in one of the quarantine hog-corals, his sleeves rolled up, a puzzled look of worry puckering his boyish face.

"What's up, Doc?" asked Judith. "Don't know, Judy. That's what gets my mad up. Just performed an autopsy on one of your Poland-China gilts."

"Found it dead?" asked Judith.

"Killed it," granted Tripp. "Sick. Half a dozen more are off their feed and don't look right. A man's always afraid of the cholera. And," stubbornly, "I won't believe it! There's been no chance of infection; why, there's not an infected herd this side of Rocky Bend, a clean hundred miles from here."

"Not getting nerves? Are you, Doc?" And Judith spurred on down the valley.

Before she came to the spot where Bud Lee's horse had been shot she came upon Lee himself. A rifle across his arm, he was looking up at the cliffs of Squaw Creek canyon.

"Well, Lee," she said, "what do you make of it?"

He showed no surprise at seeing her and answered slowly, that far away look in his eyes as though he were alone still and speaking simply to Bud Lee.

"Using smokeless powder nowadays is a handy thing for a man shooting under cover," he said. "Then rig up your gun with a silencer and get off at fair range, half a mile and up, with a telescope sight, and it's real nice fun picking folks off!"

"All of that spells preparation," suggested Judith.

He nodded. When he offered no further remark but sat staring up at the cliffs, Judith asked:

"What else have you learned by coming back down here? Anything?"

"There were two men, anyway. I'd guess, three. The one who stuck up Charlie and then drifted while the drifting was good. Then the two other jaspers that tried to wing me."

"How do you know that?"

"My horse that was shot," he explained, "got it in the left of the neck. Now, look at that hole in the little fir tree yonder."

Judith saw what he meant now. At this point Lee yesterday had heard the second bullet singing dangerously past. It had struck the fir, and plainly had been fired from some point off to the right of the canyon.

Briefly he went on to give her the rest of the results of his two-hour seeking for something definite. If she'd ride on a little she'd come to the spot where his horse had been killed; she would see in the road the signs where, at Tripp's orders, the carcass had been dragged away. From there, looking off to the left, up the cliffs, she would see the spot which Lee believed had harbored one of the rifle-men.

"Indian Head," broke in Judith, gazing upward. "Bud Lee, I'll bet a horse you're right. . . ."

"And," said Lee, swinging from the saddle, "I'm going up there to have a little look around."

In an instant the girl was at his side.

"I am going with you," she said simply.

He look at her curiously. Then he shrugged his shoulders. An angry flush came to the girl's cheeks, but she went on with him. Not a word passed between them during the entire hour required to climb the steep side of the mountain and come under Indian Head cliffs. Here they stood together upon a narrow ledge panting, resting. Again Judith saw Lee glance at her curiously. He had not sought to accommodate his swift climbing to a girl's gait and yet he had not distanced her in the ascent. But in Lee's glance there was nothing of approval. There were two kinds of women, as he had said, and . . .

"Pretty Steep Climb From Here Up," He Remarked.

"Pretty steep climb from here up," he remarked bluntly.

"For a valley man or a cobbler pounder, maybe," was Judith's curt rejoinder.

Thereafter they did not speak again until, after nearly another hour, they at last came to the crest of Indian Head. And here, in the eagerness of their search, rewarded by the signs which they found, they forgot, both of them, to maintain their reserve.

In the clump of brush, close to the outer fringe, behind a low, broad boulder, a man had lain on his belly no longer ago than yesterday. Broken twigs showed it, a small brush crushed down told of it, the marks of his toes in some of the softer soil proclaimed it eloquently. And, had other signs been required, there they were: two empty brass cartridges where the automatic ejector had thrown them several feet away.

While Judith visualized just what had occurred, saw the tall man—he must have been tall for his boot toes to scratch the earth yonder while his rifle-barrel lay for support across the boulder in front—resting his gun and firing down into the canyon—Lee was back at her side, saying shortly:

"What do you think? There's a plain trail up here, old as the hills, but tip-top for speedy going."

"And," said Judith without looking up, "it runs down into the next saddle, to the north of that ridge, curves up again and with monuments all along the way, runs straight to the Upper End and comes down to the northeast to the lake. It's the old Indian trail."

If the man we want turned east, then he went right on to the lake before he stopped putting one foot in front of the other. Unless he hid out all night, which I don't believe."

"What makes you think he went that far?"

"There's no other trail up here that gets anywhere. Now," and she rose swiftly, confronting him, "the thing for you to do, Bud Lee, is to get back to your horse, take the road, make time getting to the Upper End and see what you can see there!"

Hurrying back to their horses, they rode to the ranch-house where Judith, with no word of adieu, left Lee to go to the house. Lee made a late lunch, saddled another horse, and when the bunk-house clock stood at a quarter of four, started for the Upper End.

"That girl's got the savvy," was his one remark to himself.

ILLINOIS A GOOD PLACE TO "MARRY A FARM"

If you want to "marry a farm," Illinois offers splendid opportunities. In the five north central states, including Illinois, an average of 8.4% of the farm owners have acquired their lands by matrimony, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, based on a survey made by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota are the other states in the "Farm by Marriage" group that should prove good hunting grounds for the land-eyed suitor. In these four states 8.4 per cent of the land owners married a farm. More than six per cent of the plainmen of Texas acquired their lands by marriage, while in Kentucky and Tennessee of the 845 farmers interviewed 5.9 per cent had taken a farm along with a wife.

For the United States as a whole 7.9 per cent of the farm acreage was acquired by the owners through purchase; 15.3 per cent by inheritance; 3.3 per cent by marriage and 2.4 per cent in other ways, principally homesteading. These percentages vary according to the location and the type of farming.

As might be expected in an old state like Massachusetts, a high percentage of the farms were acquired by inheritance. Among the 710 land transfers examined in that state, 22.3 per cent represented inheritances. In Texas among the 169 owners interviewed the majority bought their lands; only 5.7 per cent acquired their farms by inheritance. In the north central states 6.5 per cent of the farmers purchased their lands.

Western Nebraska still has many farms occupied by the original home steads. Approximately 19 per cent of the farm-owners in one section of western Nebraska, where the figures were gathered, stated they were the original homesteaders.

On the 845 farms in Kentucky and Tennessee, involving a total of 71,495 acres, 81.2 per cent of the owners had purchased outright; 12.3 per cent had acquired possession by inheritance, less than one per cent by gift and none by homesteading.

The 2,051 farms surveyed in Wisconsin showed 80.6 per cent were acquired by purchase; 9 per cent by inheritance; 3.5 per cent by gift; 1.4 per cent by marriage and 5.5 per cent in other ways, mainly by homesteading.

2 eggs beaten well.

Moisten with cream if too thick. Add salt and pepper. Mix well.

CINNAMON BREAD

Beat 1 egg in a cup. Fill the cup with milk. Sift 1 heaping cup flour with one heaping teaspoon baking powder, a pinch of salt and 1 heaping teaspoon ground cinnamon.

Add 1-3 cup sugar and at the last a tablespoon melted butter. It makes a stiff batter. When done it is light as a feather. Bake in a shallow cake pan or 8 muffin tins.

REAL BUTTERSCOTCH PIE

1 cup brown sugar.

1 cup water.

2 eggs separated.

2 heaping tablespoons butter.

3 heaping tablespoons flour.

1 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt the butter. Mix the dry ingredients. Add the yolks of the eggs beaten slightly. Add the water slowly.

It is best to make this in a double boiler. Cook until thick and then pour into pie shell or shells which have already been baked. Cover with a meringue made with:

2 egg whites—beaten stiff.

2 tablespoons sugar (powdered).

Add gradually and beat until very stiff. It helps to add a pinch of baking powder. Use a slow oven.

GREASELESS DOUGHNUTS

Good use for bacon grease.

Good use for left-over mashed potatoes.

Good use for skillet.

1 cup sugar.

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup mashed potatoes.

1 teaspoon baking powder.

$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon soda.

Little salt.

Use flour to make a soft dough. Add nutmeg or cinnamon to flavor.

Instead of old deep fat kettle, use skillet with left-over bacon grease and the result will be very satisfactory.

Game & Fish News

E. F. Mansfield Jr.

Secretary of the

Federated Sportsmen of Illinois

William J. Stratton, chief game and fish warden, in an interview advocated construction of fish ponds on every farm where conditions of soil and water are favorable as one of the best methods of providing sport and healthful recreation for the thousands of persons who can not afford expensive trips to distant fishing grounds.

Mr. Stratton is preparing a booklet for distribution which explains in detail requirements for, and inexpensive methods of constructing these fish ponds. These ponds will be stocked by the state with bass, crappie, blue gills and other fish adapted to inland waters, from the hatcheries which have been purchased and built with money derived from the sale of licenses.

Over three million young bass, or enough to stock fifty northern Illinois lakes, in addition to twenty-five carloads shipped to downstate lakes and streams, were produced last year at the Spring Grove hatchery. This hatchery, consisting of four ponds, containing about thirty acres, is one of the largest bass hatcheries in the world. Bass cannot be propagated by artificial means, so the adult fish are placed in these ponds and allowed to spawn under natural conditions. The spawn hatches in May or June, under normal temperatures, and the young are ready for distribution by late summer or early fall. At this time each pond is drained, the adult bass placed in a retaining pond and the fingerlings collected in concrete basins at the lowest part of the pond. These fingerlings are then loaded in large milk cans and delivered by rail or truck to streams and lakes of the state.

The demand for stock so far exceeded the supply that the 53rd General Assembly, at the request of the Organized Sportsmen, made an appropriation for the purchase, construction and maintenance of additional hatcheries. At the present time four bass hatcheries are under construction, and will be stocked with adult this fall.

They are distributed in such a way that cost of distribution will be minimized. The Rockford hatchery contains 17 acres in one large pond. Yorkville has two ponds of 15 acres. E. St. Louis has 15 acres and Carlyle 12 acres. Necessary retaining ponds and concrete basins are being built at each hatchery in addition to the large spawning ponds. Mr. Stratton hopes at an early date to secure additional hatcheries for other sections of the state.

However, the successful completion of this program of more fish and more places to fish depends not so much upon restrictive "Don't" Laws, as upon constructive legislation. It behooves every fisherman to see to it that all members of the legislature, in fact all public officials thoroughly understand the vital importance of carrying on this work.

The Division of Game and Fish must be financed, and it is only right and just for those who enjoy fishing to support it by paying their share in the form of a fishing license—not for the right to fish, but to increase the supply of fish for themselves and the future generations.

BIG PURE BRED MOVE ON

Lake County breeders are neglecting a great opportunity for state supremacy!

Not enough importance is paid by pure bred breeders in our county to the fact that Lake County is the banner County of Illinois in its number and diversity of pure bred livestock. Aside from the less than carloads going out to the fairs this year there were nine car loads of cattle alone sent to compete with the best in the United States.

If horses, ponies and hogs were included the total carloads would reach twenty.

A movement is now on foot to have a pure bred sire campaign in the dairy cattle industry in Lake county. Five Thousand Dollars has been raised by the Illinois Holstein Association as a revolving fund to finance the project.

At a recent meeting in Libertyville thirty-four pure bred breeders representing Holsteins, Guernseys, Jerseys, Ayrshires, Brown Swiss and Short-horns were present and plans are now being matured to supplant the scrub bull with a pure bred.

If our farmers would get together and pull together we would soon have buyers coming from all parts of the world for our pure breeds.

Many counties and localities in the United States specialize in one breed. If one will but stop and consider the start Lake county has in every branch of the breeding of pure breeds it can readily be seen how easy it would be to become noted throughout agricultural United States and what an influx of buyers would come here for their various requirements.

A county wide movement to include poultry, bee, canary bird, dog, horse, pony, beef and dairy cattle should be started at once.

Winter-time is the time to perfect the move.

RUNNING THE TOONERVILLE

TROLLEY NEVER LIKE THIS

"Picture fans who have seen the Toonerville trolley comedies know that I had some mighty exciting times," said Dan Mason, the veteran screen performer who plays an important role in the William Fox picture "The Plunderer." "But," he continued, "I never went through the rough stuff that I did in this picture."

"I'm accustomed to falling off the old trolley and I've even been thrown off," the old actor reminisced. "But in 'The Plunderer,' a whole mob of bar room miners jumps me. I saw more fists than I ever saw stars on the bumpy old trolley, believe me. Nope, running the Toonerville trolley was never like this."

"The Plunderer" comes to the Crystal theater Sunday and Monday for an engagement of two days. The cast includes Frank Mayo, Evelyn Brent, Eddie Phillips, Peggy Shaw, Tom Santschi, James Mason, Katherine Grant and Mr. Mason.

The Antioch Fire Department will hold a dance at Happy Lang's dance pavilion, Pikeville on Friday evening, October 31st. adv

DO WE WANT EUROPEAN CONDITIONS HERE?

In his opening speech at New York, Senator La Follette said:

"The greatest inspiration of the world today is the fact that in every quarter of the globe the people are gaining control of their governments. . . . On every side we see a reawakening of the people, a rebirth of genuine democracy. It is that fact, my friends, which should give us here in America hope, determination, and supreme confidence. The tidal wave of democracy that is sweeping the world no national boundaries or continental limitations. It is today sweeping over the United States. It that does not mean that in the opinion of Senator La Follette Old World countries are in advance of America in promoting the welfare of their people, what does it mean? How many Americans want this country to follow Russia, Germany, France, or even Great Britain, in their recent courses? How many farmers, in spite of their present troubles, how many working men, would change places with European farmers and working men? The November elections will tell.

"30" Centuries Old

Outside of the California Redwoods this gigantic Juniper Tree—recently discovered near Logan, Utah—is said to be the oldest living object on this hemisphere. Experts, who have examined it say it is, at least, 3,000 years old—with the more probable correct figures at 6,000.

Ordinarily, Juniper trees never grow with trunks more than six or seven feet around. But this one, as the party is indicating in this picture measured twenty-eight feet in circumference. 'Tis truly, the Patriarch of trees.

10 Good Cows Earn More Than 36 Poor Cows

Ten good cows earned more above feed costs than 36 poor cows kept in neighboring barns, records of the Stephenson county contesting association show, according to a summary just completed by H. E. Jamison, assistant in dairy extension at the University of Illinois. The ten cows earned $261.25 more than the 36 poorer animals during a year's test.

Vernon Heck, owner of the small herd, received $1,475.20 over and above feed costs from his ten Holsteins during the year, while the owners of the 36 cows received a total of only $1,213.95 above feed costs.

"This is a striking demonstration that a few good cows well cared for will pay more profits than a large number that are neglected," Jamison pointed out. "Each cow in Heck's herd produced an average of $147.53 above the cost of feed which she ate during the year, producing an average of 11,195 pounds of milk and 337 pounds of butterfat. In contrast to this, each of the 36 cows in the two lowest producing herds returned only $33.72 above the cost of feed, or $113.80 a cow less than was returned by those of Heck's herd.

"The average of all cows in the Stephenson county association for the year was 6,894 pounds of milk and 240 pounds of butterfat," Jamison explained. "This production is 50 per cent better than the produc-

One concern responsible for both quality of shingles and stain

Make your plans to build now

IF YOU USE "CREO-DIPT" STAINED SHINGLES

This material—for side walls as well as roofs—is preserved against time and weather by a special process of creosoting and staining in fast colors. Creosote oil drives the colors deep into the wood fibre so that they do not wash or fade out in streaks. The soft tones give charm to your home.

"Creo-Dipt" shingles on side walls cost less than most other building materials especially when you consider the saving in painting and repairing. "Creo-Dipt" shingles on roofs do not curl, split or pull out because the wood is preserved and does not rot around nail holes.

Prominent architects throughout the country use "Creo-Dipt" Stained Shingles for economy and for building effects.

The Breaking Point

Featuring NITA NALDI

Mary Roberts Rinehart's great story, "The Breaking Point," combined with the direction of Herbert Brenon, has produced a Paramount picture which will be one of the most cunningly conceived mysteries that have ever been woven into the plot of a motion picture.

Like all the world's greatest detective stories, "The Breaking Point" keeps its chief secret until the very last, puzzling the audiences, and because of the interest created by this mystery around which the picture revolves, the story builds until the very last moment when an entirely unexpected climax is shown.

POLA NEGRI in

"MEN"

You know Negri can act! But "Men" is Negri at the pinnacle of greatness! For here the story is a real match for her magnificent art. See her as the dancing pet of Paris—matching her wits against the kind of men who bargain for souls, reveling as she makes them pay the price of her youth. Only then will you see the full fire of her genius!

"Don't Call It Love"

Featuring Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Nita Naldi, Theodore Kosloff and Rod La Rocque

The mere announcement that William de Mille, producer of such screen triumphs as "The Marriage Maker," "Only 38" and "Grumpy" has another brilliant production to his credit, should be sufficient to arouse general interest in the offering. This is true in the case of "Don't Call It Love," a delightful and appealing story of American life and manners. Mr. de Mille never relies on the sensational or spectacular for the matchless effects he incorporates in his productions, but on the contrary, he makes his characters absolutely true to life.
